TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

THE INTERESTING EVENT OF MONDAY

An Excellent Account of the Eclipse Which Will Occur Monday--Dr. Henry Lewis Smith's Statement of What the Event Will be Worth to Astronomy. An Ant Sees a Total Eclipse of the Sun When a Bird Flies Over Him--The Great Light of the Sun.

[The following account of the great astronomical event to occur next Monday, was prepared by Prof. Henry Lewis Smith, of Davidson College, for the Charlotte Observer, and by the kindness of that paper we are enabled to give it, with the cuts illustrating same.]

First, what is an "Eclipse of the Sun," and how is it produced? When a bird flies near the ground, with the sun overhead, his shadow, as we have all noticed, sweeps over the ground beneath him. This shadow covers only a few inches, and moves with the same speed as the bird. If an ant were on the ground in the path of this shadow, the sun would be to the ant a genuine "eclipse of the sun, and would last, in the case of a large bird flying near the ground, perhaps a fiftieth of a second.

DIAGRAM SHOWING FORMATION OF A SOLAR ECLIPSE

This is a close copy in minature of what will happen on May 28th. The moon is a small world, only one forty-ninth as large as our earth, and at a distance of 240,000 miles from it. It is flying around the earth at the rate of 2,070 miles per hour from west to east. On account of the enormous size of the luminous body of the sun, 65,000,000 times as large as the moon, the shadow of the latter, as it stretches away through space, is cone-shaped, and comes to a point about a quarter of a million miles from the moon. Our earth is so far from the moon as to be almost at the tip of this shadow-cone. Hence the shadow here will cover a circle of only 50 miles across.

The position of the three heavenly bodies at 8:23 a. m., on May 28th, is roughly represented by the diagram, Fig. 1. The earth, eight thousand miles in diameter, and weighing six sextillions (6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000) of tons, is sweeping along its path around the sun at the inconceivable speed of 64,000 miles an hour. It is also whirling on its axis, carrying us in North Carolina eastward at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour. The moon is flying on its smaller circle around the earth, at the speed already given, i. e., 2,070 miles an hour. The tip of its shadow sweeps over the whirling earth covering an area 50 miles wide, whose track across the United States is shown on the map, Fig. 2.

It will take the shadow one minute and forty seconds to move over its whole breadth, fifty miles. Hence it will be that long passing over an observer in the middle of the shadow-belt. This is called the "duration of totality." Of course one living near the edge of the shadow will be covered by it a shorter period of time. Places just outside the shadow, as Charlotte, Columbia, Atlanta, etc., will see the bright surface of the sun very nearly covered by the body of the moon, but at no time will its whole disc be hidden.

The shadow, after leaving Norfolk, sweeps across the Atlantic, passes through Portugal, Spain, Algiers and Egypt, and disappears at the Red Sea, having traversed nearly half the circumference of the globe.

Let us now make a brief study of the sun itself, and see what makes an eclipse so valuable to scientists that they spend hundreds of thousands of dollars, send expeditions of the ends of the earth, and build and equip scores of temporary observatories for the sake of examining for a hundred seconds the monarch of the sky.

Of all the varied works of the Creator exposed to our direct observation, the sun is the most conspicuous, the most sublime, and the most beneficent. His rising and setting regulate the affairs of every inhabitant of our tiny globe. His slow movement toward the zenith changes winter into spring, and wakes to new life the whole vegetable kingdom. For food, health, power, warmth, even life itself, we are as dependent on the sun as a babe upon its mother. It is no wonder that so many races have worshipped this sublime luminary as the Diety himself.

To modern astronomy the sun presents a facinating field of research. Our instruments are continually growing more accurate and wonderful and our knowledge is steadily increasing, but with every problem solved a half-

JOHN L. ODELL ASSASSINATED.

STABBED BY A COTTON MILL HAND.

He Had Discharged a Weaver in the Bessemer City Mills, Who Came Back for Revenge—The Dead Man a Nephew of J. A. Odell and Leaves a Family—The Murderer in Jail.

Mr. J. A. Odell received a telegram last night conveying the sad intelligence of the death of his nephew, Mr. John L. Odell, boss weaver in the Southern Cotton Mills at Bessemer City. No information was given as to the details of the sad affair further than the young man had been assassinated and that the funeral would be held in Salisbury.

A special in this morning's Charlotte Observer gives the particulars of the occurrence as follows:

"Gastonia, May 25.—At Bessemer City this afternoon about 5 o'clock John L. Odell, boss weaver in the Southern Cotton Mills, was fatally stabbed by C. M. Davis. Odell had discharged Davis yesterday. Today Davis went into the mill two or three times and was put out by Odell. The last time he was ejected at one door and went around and came in at another, walked up to Odell, who was in the passage way, and, after a few words, stabbed him in the neck, severing the jugular vein, and ran. Odell ran out the door after him, but apparently realizing his awful calamity, turned and tried to get to the drug store. He had barely crossed the railroad when he fell dead."

Davis avoided arrest and fled, but was afterwards captured and lodged in jail. The Observer says there is strong feeling against him.

Mr. Odell was 30 years of age and leaves a wife and several children, who reside in Salisbury. He is said to have been an excellent gentleman and a thorough cotton mill man.

Federal Court Business.

District Attorney Holton today entered a libel case in the United States District Court against four packages of corn whiskey, the property of Cornelius A. Smith, seized near Kernersville.

He also entered three suits on distillers' bonds, as follows:

Against G. T. Shore and W. R. Dull, of Forsyth county, as sureties on the bond of Jesse L. Dull for $1,000. Jacob W. Shore and H. A. Davis, of Yadkin county, for $500 as sureties on the bond of William Y. Wall. J. D. Flynt and J. M. Vernon, as sureties for $500 on the bond of William J. Jackson, of Stokes county.

On the ground over which the Fifth Corps charged at Fredericksburg, the President and cabinet witnessed the laying of the corner snone of the monument to the memory of the army of the Potomac.

PREPARING FOR THE CELEBRATION.

It Will be the Greatest in the History of the Battle Ground Association.

Judge Schenck has had his household busy today addressing and sending out invitations to the approaching Battle Ground celebration.

The prospects are that the celebration this year will be the largest in the history of the association. The Society of the Cincinnati has acknowledged and accepted an invitation to meet at the Battle Ground on celebration day. It is thought that all the members of the Supreme Court and many other distinguished persons will also be present.

The committee on decorations is considering plans to make things look gay and attractive.

The grounds are in splendid condition.

The unveiling of the Vance statue will probably be postponed.

Eugene Crouse Killed.

Last night at 8:20 Eugene Crouse, son of Dr. J. A. Crouse of Elon College was run over and killed by passenger train No. 12, at Salisbury. He was a passenger from Hickory to Elon, and was said to have been intoxicated. He boarded train No. 12, which took the siding at Salisbury to let No. 35 pass.

Mr. Crouse was standing on the platform when his train moved up to the siding. When the Kerr street crossing was reached he was seen to step off backwards between the first and second-class coaches. The rear car passed over his chest, crushing it in and otherwise mangling him. A letter from his father was found in his pocket. His father was at once notified, and the body placed in the hands of an undertaker, prepared for burial, and carried to Elon College this morning.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS TODAY.

It is announced officially that the British have crossed the Vaal river and every press dispatch indicates that the writers believe the end of the war is in sight.

A dispatch from Lorenzo Marquez says the Transvaal government is now issuing paper money. An influential delegation of burghers called upon President Kruger and urged him to surrender. He replied that the matter was in the hands of the military authorities.

Miss Smith to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Willie Smith have sent out cards announcing the approachiug marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Fannie, to Mr. Richard Greene Thomas. The wedding will take place Wednesday morning, June the 26th, at seven o'clock, at the home of the bride on West Gaston street.

President McKinley has accepted a place on the mounted staff of the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., and is expected to appear on horseback and in uniform in the annual encampment parade in Chicago next August.

The Adams cigar-shaped train had a trial run from Baltimore to Washington on Tuesday last. The train consisted of a 47-ton engine and six cars, the latter so enclosed as to permit no air entering either at the sides or botttom. The trial to Washington was made in forty-five minutes, and the return trip in forty minutes and fifteen seconds. The distance is forty miles.

Statistics compiled by the German Government show that the oak is more likely to be struck by lightning than any other tree. The beech is the most seldom struck, and next in exemption is the pine. Of the lightning-struck trees, upon which the calculation was based, 58 per cent. were oaks, 21 per cent. firs, 10 per cent. pines, and 7 per cent. beeches.

A special from Montgomery says that Rev. George B. Eager, pastor of the First Baptist church, of that city, has announced his acceptance of the posttion of professor of Biblical instruction in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, at Louisville. Dr. Eager was formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Danville, and is well known in Virginia.

SPINSTERS SCORE A SUCCESS.

THEIR DEPARTURE IS REGRETTED.

Will Emigrate to Klondike, Where the Crop of Men is Large--Quotations of the Matrimonial Market--Greensboro Has a Large List of Eligibles.

The spinsters, true to their promise, captured the entire audience at the Academy of Music last night with their convention, which was decidedly one of the most enjoyable entertainments given in Greensboro in a long while. It is a pleasure to know that the convention was also a success from a pecuniary standpoint, quite a neat sum being realized for the First Presbyterian church and the Methodist chapel on Walker avenue.

The convention was called to order by the staid president, Josephine Jane Green, after which the roll was called by the secretary, Rosilla Abigail Hodge. It was ascertained that, with the exception of two enterprising spinsters, all the members were present. One of the members was detained by a breach of promise suit in which she was plaintiff. The other was absent entertaining a widower, the father of eight children.

After a stirrring address by the president, which was liberally applauded, the report of the vigilance committee was read. The report indicated that the condition of the matrimonial market during the past year had been dull and sluggish. The committee recommended that the members of the convention emigrate in a body to Klondike, where men are said to abide in large numbers and where there are no women. The recommendation was unanimously adopted.

The emigration scheme brought up the question of personal apparel for the long trip, and everybody had a suggestion to make. To settle the matter the president appointed Portia Olivia Bennett, who was unmarried because, long years ago, she was unable to make a selection between two lovers, and Penelope Gertrude Doolittle, a willowy blonde of forty-odd summers, to debate the question, "Resolved, That dress reform should be adopted." As indicated by her dapper appearance, Portia was an enthusiastic advocate of dress reform, but her cold logic was melted by the soft sentiment of Penelope, the judges rendering a decision in favor of the negative.

The address on "Woman's Rights" was very edifying and proved beyond the peradventure of a doubt that downtrodden and oppressed woman should be granted the patriotie privilege of voting.

Betsy Bobbitt's original poem on "The Bachelors and Widowers of Greensboro" showed that the Gate City has a nnmber of members of the sterner sex who are proving recreant in the performance of matrimonial duties. The market report was also interesting. Some of the stocks were dull and inactive, while others were more favorable. R. M. Rees was quoted as ready; H. C. Berger, slow; J. H. Whitt, steady; Drs. Turner, Scott and Roberson, in demand; C. P. Sellars, settled; John W. King, on the market, and so on through the long list of Greensboro eligibles.

The appearance of Prof. Renover Makeover, with his machine for transforming spinsters into blooming and blushing maidens of sixteen, occassioned much confusion and disorder. After a few preliminary remarks by the Professor, several of the older members of the convention were transformed into their ideals, when there was a grand rush for the privilege of being run through the machine. All went well until the identity of Florence Arabella Large (John Gilmer) was discovered, when the members of the convention dispersed unceremoniously.

Dr. Ledbetter Loses a Horse.

In some manner Dr A. E. Ledbetter's fine gray mare broke her left hind leg, just above the knee, while in her stall last night. It was at first thought that it would be necessary to kill the animal to end her suffering, but she was placed in the hands of a veterinary surgeon, who will make an effort to save her.

The horse was a splendid animal, of fine stock, and the accident is very unfortunate.

THE IDEALS OF THE POETS.

THE SIX TYPES OF FAIR WOMEN.

Brunhilde, the "Ideal of All Womankind." Madam Englentyne With "Eyen Grey as Glas"---Una, the Ideal of Truth and Purity---Portia, the Intellectual Woman. Ophelia---Elaine.

[The following essay, written by Master Tom Beall, won the prize in composition in the senior class of the Greensboro Graded School. The essay of the other members of the class were so near up with this that the committee had hard work to decide. They were written without books or helps of any kind, and the subjects were not announced before the class went into the room to write. The essays speak the highest praise of the work done by in school].

Every nation and nearly every person has a different conception of an ideal woman. In Norse's mythology, she is pictured as strong and beautiful, while such poets as Spenser, Shakespeare, and Tennyson have imagined her as passionate, faithful, intellectual and refined.

Perhaps the greatest and most interesting character of early English literature is Brunhilde, whom Wagner describes as "the ideal of all womanhood." This character about which poems have been written and operas sung was introduced by Snorri Sturleson in the early part of the eleventh century.

Brunhilde was at one time a Valkyrie but on account of some misconduct was exiled from the home of the gods. When her father, Odin bade her farewell he told her that she would fall in love with and marry the bravest man on earth. With this promise she left her most beautiful and holy home and came down to make her new home with the mortals.

Sigurd, the bravest and handsomest of all mortals, chanced one day to come upon this fair maiden as she slept in her armour of "grey glittering gear". Sigurd had never gazed upon one so lovely. Drawing his sword he cut from her the armour and as she stood, robed in a pure white mantle, with "snow white brow, unfurrowed cheeks and wise lips breathing light" her eyes met his. As he watched her, standing there, he loved her. Sigurd wooed Brunhilde and they lived happily together for a year, when Sigurd told her that he must go out into the world and fight more battles.

Sigurd left his wife and with her he left her babe. As he journeyed on he came to a court in which Gudrun, the fairest of all maidens, lived. Gudrun's mother, the queen, saw that Gudrun loved Sigurd and that her love was not returned, so preparing a magic potion she gave it to Sigurd, who being overcome by the effects of the drug, weds Gudrun.

Still the queen is not contented and wishes her son Gunnar to wed Brunhilde, and prevails upon Sigurd to wed her son. Sigurd wooes Brunhilde for Gunnar, but when she comes to the court she is much grieved to discover Sigurd there. To grieve her the more Gudrun tells her that Sigurd had wooed her for Gunnar. Brunhilde's grief and jealously overcome her and she has Sigurd secretly murdered. After he is dead she goes to her room and there commits suicide and is buried with her husband.

Chaucer's only fair character is the Prioresse, Madame Eglentyne, the fair, delicate maiden with the straight nose and "eyen greye as glas."

Una, the model of truth and purity is Spenser's ideal conception of woman. This maiden is tall and fair, with blue eyes and lovely form. She is a descendant of a noble family and comes to the court of Gloriana begging a knight to go on a quest for her. The Red Cross knight obtains the quest and together they ride forth. The first foe that the knight encounters is Error, whom he slays. They continue their journey and soon night overtakes them. They stop at the house of Archimago. Here they rest and while the knight sleeps Archimago gives him a drug that causes him to desert Una, and falls into the hands of Duessa Una follows him and at last with the aid of Sir Arthur she finds him confined in a dungeon by an awful giant. After our knight is set free he again starts out with Una and after many days they come to the terrible dragon that had troubled Una's good people. After three horrible battles he slays the dragon and enters the gates of the city in great triumph and soon after marries Una.

The intellectual woman of Shakespeare is the graceful, generous and eloquent Portia. This blue eyed, fair

Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

THE IDEALS OF THE POETS.

haired maiden of wealth lives at her home "Belmont." Bassonia, a young Venetian gentleman falls in love with her and is very anxious to make her his wife. In order to accomplish this he is forced to borrow money from his friend and kinsman Antonio. Antonio obtains the money from Shylock, the Jew, and gives Shylock a bond in which he promises to forfeit a pound of his flesh if he fails to repay the money by a certain date. This date arrives and as Antonio is not prepared to repay the amount, the bond is declared forfeit. Portia hurries to take the court, as soon as she hears of this great calamity, and manages the case so well that she sets Antonio free and confiscates all the Jew's property.

One of the sweetest yet one of the meekest of Shakespeare's characters is the beautiful Ophelia. This maiden who has not yet reached the age of discretion loves Hamlet passionately. Driven to despair and madness by Hamlet's strange actions and her father's murder she drowns herself.

Elaine, "the lilly maid of Astolat," is the model of the fair sex as pictured by Lord Alfred Tennyson. This girl of about sixteen, with light hair and eyes, falls in love with a noble knight who comes to her home on his way to the tournament. She begs him to wear her colors, and, as he was going in disguise, he accepts and leaves with her his shield. At the tournament he is badly wounded and is taken to a convent near by, and while he is there she comes to nurse and take care of him. She tells him of her love and he tells her he loves another. She then returns home and dies of grief and her body is floated down the stream and buried at the king's churchyard.

Thus we see that the different poets have different models, but to my mind the ideal woman is the true, beautiful, refined and intellectual one.

Identified.

A richly dressed woman entered the office of a trust company in Philadelphia the other day to rent a box. "Have you any one to identify you?" asked the attendant.

"Certainly not," said the woman indignantly. "Everybody knows who I am."

"That may be," was the reply, "but I don't know that you are the woman of that name."

Just then another woman, who had been transacting some business, raised her head, and a frigid nod passed between them.

"Do you know this woman?" asked the bank official.

"I don't want to know her," snapped the woman. "She lives next door to me, and instructed her footman to kick my dog, just because it chanced to be on her step. You needn't ask me to identify her, for I won't."

"I wouldn't let you identify me," retorted the applicant for a box. "I think you have acted horridly about your old dog, and you left the Dorcas society, telling everybody you wouldn't belong as long as I was a member. A nice Christian spirit!"

In the meantime the bank official, entirely satisfied that the identification was complete, handed over the key to the box, to the ill concealed chagrin of the other woman, who had identified her against her will.—New York Tribune.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

DOES IT PAY TO BUY CHEAP?

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. DYSPEPSIA

"My wife suffered for many years from Nervous Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sleeplessness and Nervous Debility," writes John Kelloes, Philadelphia. "We tried many physicians and numerous remedies, but with no results, until I heard of Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. We bought six boxes, and the results far surpassed our expectations. She now eats and sleeps well, is gaining in flesh, and her color, which had got to be yellow and sickly, is now as fresh as when we were first married, and I tell her that Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure has made her ten years younger."

Achilles was invulnerable in every part of the body save his heel. The myth runs that he was rendered invulnerable by being dipped in the river Styx in infancy, the heel by which he was held being the only part not submerged and therefore retaining its mortal weakness.

Everyone has some weak spot in his physical organism, and that weak spot is the invariable attacking point of disease. No man is stronger than that weakest spot in him. We see great robust looking men go down like ninepins, at a touch of disease, and wonder at it. It is simply the wound in the weak spot, the vulnerable heel of Achilles.

It is the office of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to build up the weak places, to strengthen the weak organs of the body. It does this on Nature's own plan of nourishment. Proper food properly assimilated makes a weak man strong. But the man is only an aggregation of parts, so that the strong man means strength of all parts, heart, lungs, liver, nerves, etc. "Golden Medical Discovery" puts into Nature's hands the material by which the stomach is strengthened, the blood purified, the nerves nourished, the lungs vitalized. It makes the weak strong and the sick well. It contains no alcohol or other intoxicant.

Mr. R. J. McKnight, of Cades, Williamsburg Co., S. C., writes: "I had been troubled with rheumatism for twelve years, so bad at times I could not leave my bed. I was badly crippled. Tried many doctors and two of them gave me up to die. None of them did me much good. The pains in my back, hips and legs (and at times in my head), would nearly kill me. My appetite was very bad. I took five bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of 'Pellets,' and to-day my health is good."

W. I. UNDERWOOD, City Editor.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1900.

WILL CONTINUE TO DO HIS DUTY.

The city of Atlanta has for some time had one of her tough citizens occuping the mayoralty chair—J. G. Woodward. He is the kind of mayor that people of a certain class might like, in fact he is highly popular with this class in Atlanta, but such an one as the more decent element of mankind hardly admire. Nothing describes him better than the word tough. The other day the city council asked him to resign because he had violated his promises to it not to get drunk again. He replied thus:

"Atlanta, Ga., May 21, 1900—To the General Council: Gentlemen,—I have given your request for my resignation careful and conscientious consideration, and am convinced that the public interest makes it my duty to continue to fill the office to which the people elected me.

Respectfully submitted,

"J. G. WOODWARD.

Who can blame him for holding on to his job after carefully and conscientiously considering the matter and deciding that it is his duty to continue to serve the city. A vexatious city councils need not expect to get Mayor Woodward to sacrifice the public good. No, indeed, he will continue to be Mayor—when sober.

We spoke yesterday of the fight of yellow journals on the ice trust of New York which has arbitrarily put the price up to 60 cents per hundred. This morning the price was reduced in some parts of the city from 60 to 40 cents per hundred, and the press dispatch says it was on account of the suit in court and the fight of the newspapers. For one time we are able to heartily congratulate the yellows.

Our vigorous contemporary, the Salisbury Truth-Index, says:

The fight is on. It is a conflict between McKinley, Imperialism, Trusts, and Rule by Money on one hand, and Bryan, the Republic, Free and Open Competion, and Rule according to the Constitution and justice to all on the other. On which side? Let no watchman give an uncertain sound!

Does our contemporary mean to stab us? Is he an enemy parading in the garments of friendship. Is it an oversight, or is it an ungenerous wound from the hand of the faithful? Does our contemporary expect to thus slight, ignore, set down upon, and throw dirt and contumely upon the noble cause of 16 to 1, and escape the censure such conduct merits? Let no watchman give an uncertain sound, and if there be a traitor in the camp, unburry his golded wedge. Put him into outer darkness, where the music of 16 to 1 never reaches, and the clanking chains of imperialism clank all the time.

A COUNTY CONVENTION CALLED

WILL MEET SATURDAY, JUNE 30TH.

Democratic Executive Committee in Session This Ajternoon---Large Attendance Anti-Dispensary Democrats Asked to Be Heard, But When the Time Came Refused to Come Before the Committee.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Guilford county met at 1 o'colck this afternoon at Democratic headquarters, in the South Loan and Trust Company building.

A roll call showed a large majority of the membership represented, either in person or by proxy.

Messrs. G. S. Boren, John L. Hendrix and —— McCulloch were appointed a committee on proxies. They found all proxies in due and regular form.

Mr. J. D. Oldham was elected chairman of the precinct committee in South Rock Creek to succeed Mr. E. B. Wheeler, who has moved out of the township.

It was stated that the principal business before the committee was the selection of dates for holding the county convention and precinct primaries. Upon motion of Dr. Fox, the county convention was called to meet in the county court house in this city on June 30th, at 11 o'clock a. m., the primaries to be held at the usual places in the various townships on the preceding Saturday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The anti-dispensary Democrats who had requested a hearing before the committee, and who had been invited to be present, declined to come in.

He Couldn't Solve It.

As a train was approaching a town on the Great Northern railway in Ireland an intelligent looking young Irishman observed a lady standing up searching her pocket. She commenced to weep. "Have you been robbed?" he asked.

"Oh, no," she replied; "I've lost my ticket, and they will accuse me of fraud."

Seeing her distressed state of mind, he said:

"Oh, don't mind. Here, take my ticket, and I will give the guard a problem," while their fellow passengers awaited the scene at the station with interest.

When the train stopped, the guard collected all the tickets but one. "Where is your ticket?" he asked the young man.

"You have got my ticket," he replied.

"No, I have not got it. I'll call the station master and see about it."

"Where is your ticket?" asked the station master when he appeared.

"He has my ticket. See if he has a ticket in his hand with a small piece off the corner."

"Yes, you have, Dave. There it is."

"Well, see will that fit it?" said Pat, handing him the small piece, and it did. A look of surprise crept over the guard's face as he left the carriage, while Pat caused much amusement by exclaiming, "Begorra, I knew he could not solve it!"—London Tit-Bits.

ENTERTAINMENT BY MRS. CONE.

A Scene of Rare Beauty---Mr. Cone's Parting Gifts to the Guests Were American Beauties.

Mrs. Ceasar Cone entertained last evening at her palatial home on Summit Avenue in honor of her guest, Miss Cone, of New York.

The lawn, lighted by hundreds of Japanese lanterns and electric lights, was indeed a "thing of beauty and a joy" for the night.

The spacious rooms were exquisite in their decorations of Magna Charta roses in bold relief against a background of palms and rare plants. The barn, made attractive by roses, palms, and electric lights, was utilized for dancing—one of the most enjoyed features of the evening.

Mrs. Cone was assisted in receiving by Mrs. M. H. Cone, of New York.

As the guests departed, Mr. Cone presented each lady with a bunch of American Beauty roses—a fragrant and lovely souvenir of this delightful occasion.

Among the guests present were the following:

Miss Van Dyke, of Wilmington, with Mr. Will McAdoo; Miss Lizzie Leigh Dick, with A. H. Staples; Miss Nellie Merrimon, with Mr. Everett B. King; Miss Walker Fry, with Mr. T. S. TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

dozen new ones rise on our expanding horizon and challenge solution.

The sun is a globe of intensely heated gas, nearly one and a half million times as large as our little earth. From it in all directions through space issues an inconceivable flood of light and heat, of which our world receives one part in every two thousand million. The outer surface of the sun, exposed to the cold of space, is slightly cooler than the gaseous interior, though hotter than anything we are acquainted with on earth. Those materials near the surface, which easily assume a solid or liquid form, such as most earths and metals are thus condensed, and form a shell of brilliant white-hot clouds. This cloud envelope, whose particles are iron, platinum, etc., instead of water is called the Photosphere. It is marked P in rough diagram of the sun accompanying this sketch (Fig 3). From it we get most of our sunlight. Above this white-hot cloud-belt lies the flaming atmosphere of the sun, mainly composed of hydrogen and helium, though containing numerous other gases. These gases are vividly incandescent, and have of often been compared in appearance to a prairie on fire, except that the red flames reached upward thousands of miles instead of scores of feet. Its scientific name, the Chrosmosphere, is derived from its vivid color.

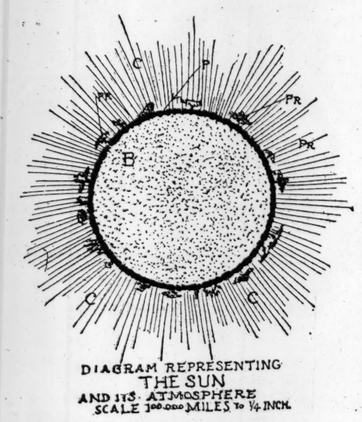

DIAGRAM REPRESENTING THE SUN AND ITS ATMOSPHERE SCALE 100,000 MILES TO ¼ INCH.

Fig. 3.

In the chrosmosphere and photosphere vast whirlwinds rage almost unceasingly, and eruptions cast huge glowing clouds of Chrosmospheric matter far above the ordinary level of the chromosphere. These clouds are called Prominences, and often float a hundred thousand miles above the sun's surface.

The solar cyclones and eruptions which give rise to the prominences and sunspots cause brilliant displays of the aurora on our earth, and generate widespread magnetic and electric disturbances.

Reaching far beyond the Chromosphere and prominences to distances measured by millions of miles from the solar surface, lies the mysterious extension of the sun's atmosphere called the Corona, marked C C C in the diagram. It is composed of wonderful streamers and filaments of light, intertwined with one another, and strangely distributed in sheaves, and seemingly fused together in a glow of pearly greenish light, almost dazzlingly bright near the sun, but growing fainter as it recedes.

In the study of the sun's atmosphere and corona lies the only hope of discovering the secrets of his chemical constitution, of his physical state, of his past and future history, and of the mysterious influence of the solar tempests on our globe. Yet practically none of these researches, so complex, important and varied, can be carried on except during the few moments of a total solar eclipse. The overpowering brilliance of the photosphere blinds us to the very existence of the chromosphere and corona. Even if we screen our eyes from the direct vision of the photosphere, which can be easily done, the sunlit air just over our heads is still sixty times as bright as the corona, and hides everything surrounding the sun from our investigation.

On next Monday the great shadow of the moon will not only cover the brilltant solar surface from our view, but will darken the air for twenty-five miles on each side of the centre. During that hundred seconds, therefore, this wondrous halo, surpassing in beauty almost every other natural phenomenon visible to man, yet more remarkable still for the profound secrets hidden in its mysterious splendor, will be the target for ten thousand instruments and a million eyes. When the moon's friendly shadow has swept past Norfolk over the Atlantic, our atmosphere will once more draw its brilliant veil over the scene, not to be lifted again till June 8th, 1918, when it passes across the continent again from Oregon to Florida.

Bridge Builders' Fright.

Bridge building is a perilous business, and no insurance company will take any risk on the lives of superstructure workers. There is one horrible sensation known to superstructure workers. It is something like stage fright.

"I know once," said one of them, "when I wasn't up more than 140 feet, a sudden feeling came over me that I couldn't get down. I looked down, and there was a swift tide swirling around the edges of the piers. It seemed to me I should surely be killed. I clasped both arms around the beam on which I was working and lay there, just clinging to it, for 20 minutes. Luckily for me, the foreman, who was near me, saw what was the matter and had sense enough not to speak to me. If he had, I know I should certainly have fallen off. He kept on working, and I clung helplessly to the beam. Finally, in a gruff voice, he growled at me: 'Say, git out o' there! I want to put a rivet there.' And I, obedient to an instinct of duty, found myself moving along. The feeling passed away as I did move and didn't come back."

"When I was in Peru building bridges," said an engineer, "I did not lose my head at work, but I more than once woke up during the night hanging to the sides of the bed in desperation of fear to keep from falling in a nightmare."—Boston Herald.

All Fools' Day.

The custom of playing pranks on April fools' day probably had its origin in France, the first nation to begin the new year Jan. 1 instead of March 25. Before the change April 1 was the day when the merrymaking of the New Year's celebration culminated in the paying of gifts and visits in return for those already bestowed. When the reformed calendar in 1564 made the 1st of January the beginning of the new year, April 1 was the time for pretended gifts and visits of mock ceremony to make fools of those who had forgotten the change in dates.

The Romans had a holiday similar in character to this, although not coming at the same time of year, the saturnalia, and in Hindustan the feast of the Huli, on March 31, has for its chief diversion the sending of people on fruitless errands.

In Scotland they have a trick for April fools' day which never grows stale. If a fellow can be found simple enough to undertake it, he is given a note to carry to a certain person. He reads it and says it is not for him, but that he is to go to—naming another man—and from there he is sent to another and so on until the bearer grows tired or sees a light. The note contains the lines:

This is the first of Aprile;
Hunt the gowk another mile.

Egg Superstitions.

There are many superstitions about the egg. In Scotland and Ireland children are taught by their nurses to crush the shell after eating an egg or to push the spoon through the bottom in the form of a cross, showing a lingering relic of the once general superstitious belief that witches lived in eggshells and made boats of them, casting spells upon the household.

In Italy it was believed that an egg laid by a white hen in a new nest on Easter day would cure pains in the head or stomach; that broken in a vineyard it would prevent its suffering from hail or similarly would save a field from frost, and its possession gave one the power to see witches. It was also believed that an egg laid on Good Friday, thrown on the fire, would extinguish it, while the devil would be killed if shot with an egg laid on Christmas.—Self Culture Magazine.

Mail Shirt of a Dervish Warrior.

The shirt is made of rings, every ring from a piece of steel wire 1¼ inches long and about one-sixteenth of an inch thick. The ends of the piece of wire are flattened out, holes are punched through them, one end is turned on to the other, and they are fastened together by a small rivet. Every ring connects four others. The wire differs somewhat in thickness, not by design seemingly so as to make one part of the shirt stronger than another, but from material of uniform thickness running short. In parts where the rings are free to jingle together they are worn very thin. Round the neck is a band of three thicknesses of red leather, stiff like the stock worn formerly in our army. It is 2¾ inches high and on the outside is decorated with ornamental lines like toolings made by a bookbinder.—Notes and Queries.

Bet and Wager.

"What's the difference between a bet and a wager?" asked the man who thinks there are too many words in the English language.

"A bet," said the friend who always wears a dress coat after 6 o'clock, "is something you make with a man, which has to be paid, no matter who loses. A wager is something more refined. It's made with a woman and is not considered collectable unless she wins."—Washington Star.

"Phwas ivery place covered in Noah's flood, Dinny?"

"All but th' city of Cork, Larry."—Chicago News.

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMEN WHO WORK.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.

Though only 19 years old, I suffered from pains and female troubles two years. Last spring I got so bad I had to quit work. I had to support myself, and could not afford a high-priced doctor. I got one bottle of Wine of Cardui and that made me feel better. Have now used several bottles and am well. My mother used the Wine for Change of Life and was greatly relieved.

MISS MARGARET WALSH.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Many girls and women find it necessary to earn their own living in various kinds of employment. Their work is often so hard and confining that the health breaks down. Their delicate constitutions are unfitted for tiresome tasks. Weakness nearly always makes its appearance in the peculiarly delicate womanly organs. Constant standing on the feet, and coming and going at the beck of a superintendent or foreman, induces falling of the womb, leucorrhœa, headache and backache. The pay of women workers is often so notoriously small that when sickness comes they have no money to engage skillful physicians. To them Wine of Cardui is truly a blessing. It cures them of their ills at a small cost, and they can act as their own physicians. No doctor can do as much for "female troubles" as Wine of Cardui.

GREEDY MACKEREL.

A Gorging Feast and the Way It Was Managed.

I once enjoyed the privilege of seeing an army of mackerel successfully corner a shoal of small fry in a rocky shallow pool which was a cul de sac. The mackerel swam behind their victims in serried ranks, a company of hungry, determined creatures, intent upon a gorging feast to which there need be no limit. They had followed the fry for miles maybe, merely swallowing one here and one there to keep their appetites whetted. Now they had cornered them where there was no escape for their victims. No alert fisherman on the lookout for just such an opportunity was at hand to convert their triumph and feasting into captivity and lamentation. They might feast at will.

And, ye gods, feast they did! No one who has not seen it would believe that the cubic capacity of a mackerel could possibly deal successfully with the number of small fish he actually swallows. The way he conducts the operation of feasting is unique. Opening his mouth wide, the mackerel darts in among the small fry, some of which are perhaps one-third of his own length. In an instant one of these is to be seen sticking half in and half out of his mouth. Then the mackerel gives one gulp, and the victim has disappeared. Without a moment's delay the process is repeated and repeated so many times that the spectator cannot fail to be concerned for the immediate future of the particular mackerel he has watched. Yet nothing happens.

As for the fry, their helpless anguish is somewhat heartrending. The whole shoal of them boils and churns the water in an agony of fear. High into the air they leap in order to avoid their voracious enemies, landing themselves often enough upon the weed covered rocks which skirt the pool and panting their lives out there rather than leap back into the seething mass of their harassed companions beneath.—Longman's Magazine.

St. Helena.

St. Helena is a great place for caves and hills. Both abound, particularly the latter. Geologically speaking, the island is largely, if not wholly, volcanic, and a lot of extinct craters are apparent. Some of the pinnacles have queer names, such as Lot's Wife, the Man and the Horse, the Asses' Ears, Holdfast Tom, Old Joan Point, Stone Top, etc.

The only inhabited place is Jamestown, which has a population of about 2,500. It lies in a deep valley surrounded by very high hills. It is not a particularly healthy place. Ladder hill is where the government house is situated. It is so called because of the almost precipitous ladderlike wooden stairs, by which its acclivity of 600 feet has to be scaled.

Nearly four miles inland from Jamestown is an isolated farmhouse, on an elevated plateau about 2,000 feet above the sea. This is Longwood, where Napoleon lived from 1815 until he died there, in 1821. The house is a long, low, whitewashed, fairly trim building, with extensive outhouses, some rather fine old trees and a good bit of decent farm land.

Black Coats.

An English clergyman, rather pompous of manner, according to Spare Moments, was fond of chatting with a witty chimney sweep.

Once, when the minister returned from his summer holidays, he happened to meet his youthful acquaintance, who seemed to have been at work.

"Where have you been?" asked the clergyman.

"Sweeping the chimneys at the vicarage," was the boy's answer.

"How many chimneys are there, and how much do you get for each?" was the next question.

The sweep said there were 20 chimneys and that he was paid a shilling apiece.

The clergyman, after thinking a moment, looked at the sweep in apparent astonishment. "You have earned a great deal of money in a little time," he remarked solemnly, wondering, probably, what the sooty fellow would reply.

"Yes," said the sweep, throwing his bag over his shoulder as he started away. "We who wear black coats get our money very easily!"

Poor Consolation.

The following story is told in "The Recollections of Sir Algernon West:"

One pouring wet night Lowe missed his umbrella from the cloakroom in the house of commons, where he had carefully put it away under the letter "L." He interrogated the custodian, Mr. Coe, who told him Sir E. Lytton had taken it. "I told him it was yours," he said, "and Sir Edward said that if he found that it was when he got home he would send it back in the morning."

Poison Ivy.

Bathing with alcohol will prevent injurious effects from poison ivy, or, if the poison has taken effect, wetting the affected part with alcohol, to which sugar of lead has been added, until a milky appearance is obtained will give relief. The wash is poison and for external use only.

A Torturing Suggestion.

The doomed man shuddered. "There will be no music when I march to the scaffold?" he asked anxiously.

They reassured him.

"There was a march played when I was married," he muttered. "I—I could not bear to be reminded of that!"—New York Press.

WHAT OUR SCHOOLS ARE DOING.

A Manual Training School in Greensboro Would be Popular -- Something of the Growth of the Graded Schools--The Library a Matter of Pride--A Talk With Chairman Simmons---The People Are Aroused and Many Speakers Are in the County.

While in Greensboro a day or two ago Chairman F. M. Simmons, of the Democratic State Executive Committee, told the Telegram that the work of the campaign was progressing very satisfactorily—to the Democrats. "Immediately after the great and enthusiastic State convention on April 11th," said Mr. Simmons, "some of our people, on account of a feeling of overconfidence, were inclined to take things too easy. They did not realize the necessity for hard and constant work to insure a great victory in August, relying solely on the issues of the Democracy in this campaign to bring the white people of the State together. But when they realized the work of misrepresentation being done by the opposition Democrats became aroused and went to work. In many counties the forces have been organized and Democratic clubs formed. Local meetings are being held and the people are coming out to the speakings.

"The enthusiasm has increased wonderfully within the past two weeks, and the situation is all that could be desired. With enough of the proper kind of work there is no doubt that the people can be brought to a correct understanding of the amendment, its objects and effects."

Mr. Simmons added that at present there is much speaking, principally by local leaders and orators, in all parts of the State. From now on the greater part of the speaking will de done in the rural districts, where it is most needed. Most of the speeches thus far have been made in towns and cities, and it is felt that they are safe.

* * * *

The references of Dr. Winston and Mayor Taylor, at the High School commencement the other night, to the importance of a manual training school in connection with the Greensboro public schools, apparently struck a responsive chord in the public mind. It is coming to be recognized more every day that North Carolina's greatest progress in the future is to be along industrial lines, and it is essential that preparation for this changed condition of affairs be made by giving our young men then ecessary training.

* * * *

The growth of the Greensboro Graded Schools has been rapid and gratifying. As an illustration of this growth, it may be stated that ten years ago the attendance at the white school was 190 and there were only 5 teachers. That year the high school department was added, since which time the increase in attendance and equipment has been a matter of pride to the friends of public education. During the scholastic year just closed the attendance of white pupils was something over 1,300. Now there are 27 teachers employed. Since the high school was organized 11 classes, consisting of 140 members, have been graduated. During the past year 105 pupils were enrolled in the high school, a majority of whom were boys. The reverse is usually the case.

* * * *

Another matter of pride in connection with our graded schools is the library at the Lindsay Street School. Several years ago a nucleus for the establishment of a library was obtained by the donation of a few books. The number was constantly added to by donations, though the growth was necessarily slow, until the Board of Education adopted an order providing that all money received for tuition might be applied to the purchase of books for the library. The money has been wisely expended and new and valuable books added, until the library has become a credit to the schools and the city. The books are read and studied by the pupils of the schools, who, along with the Superintendent and teachers, take a pardonable pride in their library.

During the past year the library has been moved into new quarters and now occupies a room formerly used as a recitation hall. Through the generosity of Mr. C. G. Wright the room has been repainted and papered, presenting a very neat and attractive appearance.

A Story of Amos Cummings.

One summer a number of years ago Amos Cummings passed two weeks on a pilot boat and took Ernest Jarrold, the author of "Mickey Finn Idylls," with him for company. One day a great storm arose, and the pilot boat was tossed about on the waves like a chip. Every minute a wave would dash over the deck and threaten to carry everything away and swamp the boat. Cummings and Jarrold were in the little cabin, the former lying in a bunk intently reading a book on the French revolution. Jarrold poked his head out to look at the storm, when a mountain of sea water fell with a boom on the deck and filled his eyes with spray. The boat gave a fearful lurch and careened until it seemed that she must turn completely over.

"This is awful, Amos," said Jarrold. "I'm going to put on a life preserver, for I don't think the boat can stand it many minutes longer."

"Oh, keep quiet, and let me read, Mickey," said Cummings, never lifting his eyes from the page. "The men on this boat draw a regular salary to keep her afloat."—Saturday Evening Post.

Appropriate.

At Chalfont, St. Giles, England, stands a remarkable monument, erected by Sir Hugh Palliser to his friend, Captain Cook, the celebrated navigator. One of the most singular visits to this monument occurred in 1865 when Queen Emma of the Sndwich Islands went in company with Bishop Wilberforce. People in the district still recall, with amusement, how the village band, wishing to greet her majesty with an appropriate tune and not knowing the Sandwich Islands national anthem, tootled forth "The King of the Cannibal Islands."

The First Umbrella.

To prove at what date the first umbrella was made is a seemingly hopeless task, but we find records of their use among the Greeks and Romans not alone as a protection from sun or rain, but as a distinguishing mark of royalty. By the time of Queen Anne's reign they had become quite common simply as a protection, but they were all imported until about 1802, when the manufacture of them was begun in England.

Knew His Pop.

"A little fellow," says the Kennebec Journal, "the oldest in a family of little ones, whose father worked away from home winters, had occasion to visit his grandparents for a few days. On his return he found another little member. His remarks will show that he was both surprised and indignant: 'Well, if you haven't gone and got another gosh darned kid! Won't my father be mad when he hears of it!' "

There is no fun in playing cards for fun, and it is dangerous to bet.—Atchison Globe.

Two of Nast's Faces.

William M. Tweed was a portly man of medium size, with a long, pendulous nose, little porcine eyes, fat, drooping cheeks and a straight, firm mouth that was decidedly his best feature. The outlines of his face were those of a Bartlett pear, little end upward, and I never saw craft so palpably written upon a human countenance. Nast used to be fond of drawing Tweed's face, by the way, as a sack of money. The general contour of his head lent itself to the outlines of the sack, and he used $ marks for the nose and eyes. Strange to say, it was a capital portrait.

Another of Nast's trick pictures was one of Roscoe Conkling. He would draw a large letter V, with a smaller v inside it and surmount the pair with an interrogation mark upside down. The big V represented Conkling's pointed beard, the smaller one his sharp nose and the interrogation point the Hyperion curl which he always allowed to fall negligently upon his forehead. That caricature made the haughty senator wild and exasperated him more than any bit of fun that was ever poked in his direction.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He Won.

"How is your brother, Tommy?"

"Ill in bed, miss. He's hurt himself."

"How did he do that?"

"We were playing at who could lean farthest out of the window, and he won."

Flowery Phrases.

Professor Walter Raleigh, who has published a rather clever book on "Style," likes making phrases. "The poetry of Catullus," he said in a college address, the other day, "has survived the passing of a religion and an empire; the diary of Mr. Samuel Pepys will be as fresh as at the day of its birth, when the Forth bridge is oxide of iron and London is a geological pancake of brick dust."

Comprehensive.

On a tombstone in an old New England churchyard there is an epitaph which never fails to bring a smile to the face of the reader:

"To the memory of Ann Sophia and Julia Hattie, his two wives, this stone is erected by their grateful widower, James B. Rollins. They made home pleasant."—Woman's Journal.

PORTRAITS IN THE WALL OF THE FAMOUS MARBLE ROOM.

A Slab of Stone In the Treasury Department That Shows a Perfect Profile of Queen Victoria and Other Interesting Pictures.

The often repeated statement that Uncle Sam is without sentiment is illustrated in a measure in the treasury department. The famous marble room, which cost the government $300,000, although still a place of beauty, is no longer an ornamental chamber only. The room around which tradition has woven many a curious tale, the room in which General Grant received the guests who attended his first inaugural ball, is now used as a cash room.

Long years ago, when the architect who planned the interior of the room saw his dream realized, when the painters and decorators had completed their labors and visitors were allowed to gaze upon its magnificence, it was declared to be the finest room in the country. Men and women of national and international fame have danced upon the marble floors where today stand prosaic counters and desks. The pretty gallery in which sat the famously beautiful women of those days, where society gossiped and belles and beaus carried on flirtations, is still retained. But it is empty, and no one, unless it be the spirits of those who once adorned the room, looks down upon the small army of employees who handle $262,000,000 each year before it is distributed throughout the United States.

This famous room of the treasury department has been used for this purpose for a number of years. The growing demands of the department made this necessary, but the place has not lost reputation even if it has become one of the government's workshops. The marble room of the treasury department is known far and wide and is a feature of interest to visitors on a tour of inspection of the building. The interior is constructed of marble brought from sunny Italy, from France and from Vermont.

F. E. Spinner was treasurer when the room was built. W. H. West was chief clerk, and A. B. Mullett was the supervising architect. Hugh McCulloch was secretary of the treasury, and his assistants were W. E. Chandler and J. F. Hartly. This information is proclaimed by two marble slabs placed above the doors. All the marble is without doubt the most magnificent that could be obtained. One of the squares, however, is particularly remarkable. It is a beautiful specimen of black Vermont marble. A crack runs through the middle of this square, the most remarkable one in the whole room. On it, as though drawn by an artist, is a picture of Queen Victoria, a full life sized figure of an old Quakeress and the head and shoulders of a French soldier, with his little round cap set jauntily on the side of his head, fastened with a cord that runs down the side of the face and under the chin.

The discovery of the faces and figures on the marble was made by Messenger W. R. Elliott. One day, while seated in front of the square, he was startled by the lines of alternate black and white forming the figure of the old Quakeress. A full side view of the old woman is shown. The traditional poke bonnet is pictured, a shawl covers the slightly drooped shoulders, and the hands are folded complacently in front of the body. It needs no steady gaze to bring out the picture. It is as perfect as though drawn by a master hand.

The face of Queen Victoria is also remarkably true to life. It requires no effort of imagination to draw out the contour of her face. Only the profile and a small portion of the shoulders are displayed. The face of Queen Victoria on the marble has given the officials no end of amusement. Several years ago, while a number of young English women who had visited this country for the purpose of attending a Christian Endeavor convention were being taken through the treasury department, they were shown the face of their beloved queen. They were greatly amazed at the likeness, and many exclamations of love and veneration were expressed. While admiring the queer designing of nature one of the young women declared that the English government should purchase the marble square.

The picture of the French soldier is shown in the lower right hand corner of the square. The figure is half life size and is in profile, like the other two. The shoulders are thrown back just as they are drawn by famous French military artists. Nothing could be more truly drawn than the round cap which is set half over the left ear. There are other faces and figures to be found on the square. Dogs, birds and countless grotesque figures can easily be traced by following the lines.—Washington Post.

Paper Carpets In Korea.

"Carpets in Korea are not of as little moment as are carpets here. They are handed down in families as heirlooms from generation to generation to become darkened and subdued with age. They are rugs always and are made of paper by a peculiar process. In appearance they are much like the lacquered boxes which come from Japan and which are so much used as handkerchief boxes," said the old time American consul in Korea. "The natives always take off their sandals when they enter the house, and that fact accounts largely for the long life of the rugs. When I was there, however, I shocked the feelings of every one by wearing my shoes, carpets or no carpets, and during my stay I completely wore out some of those beautiful dark colored carpets. They are about a quarter of an inch in thickness and very effective."

A Mightier Tribe.

Once upon a time the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher of Elmira, N. Y., brother to Henry Ward Beecher, got into some sort of a quarrel with a man named Smith down at Cohoes. Thomas K. Beecher wrote the presumptuous man a defiant little note, saying curtly:

"Do you want to get into a quarrel with the Beecher family?"

And the man wrote back, with a snarl:

"Do you want to fight with the Smith family?"

And no Beecher could stand that. Thomas K. laughed and hastened to make terms.—Los Angeles Times.

A great man does not always attain a ripe old age—in fact, hardly half of the greatest men of modern and ancient times have reached the limit of age set by the Bible, 70.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

BLOOD POISON.

Mercury AND Potash Make Wrecks, Not Cures

In some cases the external signs of Contagious Blood Poison are so slight that the victim is firmly within the grasp of the monster before the true nature of the disease is known. In other cases the blood is quickly filled with this poisonous virus and the swollen glands, mucus patches in the mouth, sores on scalp, ulcers on tongue, sore throat, eruptions on skin, copper colored splotches, and falling hai and eyebrows leave no room for doubt, as these are all unmistakable signs of Contagious Blood Poison.

Doctors still prescribe mercury and potash as the only cure for Blood Poison. These poisonous minerals never yet made a complete and permanent cure of Contagious Blood Poison. They drive the disease back into the system, cover it up for a while, but it breaks out again in worse form. These powerful minerals produce mercurial rheumatism and the most offensive sores and ulcers, causing the joints to stiffen and finger nails to drop off. Mercury and potash make wrecks, not cures, and those who have been dosed with these drugs are never after free from aches and pain.

S. S. S. acts in an entirely different manner, being a purely vegetable remedy; it forces the poison out of the system, and instead of tearing down, builds up and invigorates the general health. S. S. S. is the only antidote for this specific virus, and therefore the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. No matter in what stage or how hopeless the case may appear, even though pronounced incurable by the doctors, S. S. S. can be relied upon to make a rapid, permanent cure. S. S. S. is not a new, untried remedy; an experience of nearly fifty years has proven it a sure and unfailing cure for this disease. It is the only purely vegetable blood medicine known.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do me no good I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved, and was delighted with the result. The large, red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass."
